Area of optimization for B-cell epitope prediction. Knowledge of protein structure is key for understanding protein function. Although today several structure databases such as the Protein Data Bank (PDB) are available, not all the protein structures are resolved and annotated. B-cell epitope prediction is a critical component in immune function, disease diagnosis, and drug and vaccine design. In this work, we have defined the boundary of area of optimization for B-cell epitope prediction, based on our previous algorithms and structure databases (Ensembl database, BALiBASE and PDB). Prediction accuracies with B-cell epitope definition were consistently above the overall B-cell benchmark accuracies. The estimated areas of optimization were typically a few percent of the protein size and were in agreement with the high-scores B-cell region definition in the original papers.

Summit of the American Giant The Summit of the American Giant was a multisport event held in the US state of Oregon. In its final edition, it was held in Troutdale, Oregon in 2012. Two previous versions were held in Portland (1984 and 1988). The American Giant Summit is an annual competition, held between National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division III colleges. All athletes compete in 50 km cross country running and 15 km road running, in addition to the 5 km road running for the men's and women's teams. History The Summit of the American Giant began in 1984, staged at the Portland campus of Lewis & Clark College in North Portland, Oregon. The event was the brainchild of Lenny Truesdell, the college's athletic director at the time, who was inspired to start a summer long series of multisport events after watching members of the University of Oregon track team participate in an event in San Francisco. The original American Giant included cross country running, 15 km road running, and a 5 km road race for the men and women.

In 1988, the event was

Jul 8, 2014 - What's new in the next patch (update 15) from the Darwin Project team. The new mini-tutorial includes a first steps in painting the flag and the national emblem. Jul 8, 2014 - There are two new game-modes being worked on: Politics and Cyberpunk. If politics is your choice, you can read and manage the campaign of a presidential office, if you're interested. Jul 8, 2014 - You can now choose a country and unlock its empire-building features. Civ 5 The Darwin Project - 1914-18 Dec 18, 2014 - Update No. 6 with a new map and a great new mod called Germany: The Darwin Project. The new map will change the map and region of Germany is 4437x3152 pixels with a lot of buildings and other features. Dec 18, 2014 - With the new map and the new feature-set, we have to have a new background. As this will be a new background, we will also have to test the mod within its features and also test its features and lets see what the players think and how this new map should look like and work with the mod in general. The mod features new campaign history, special. Dec 18, 2014 - You want to see the Darwin Project? And do not have the mod? Make sure to do some of the new features such as the new map with the new regions and the history by ranking the world civs like the real-life. Aug 31, 2014 - I now have a project for my portfolio, The Darwin Project. Aug 31, 2014 - The development is continuing - new buildings, graphics (high-res) and many more new features will be added. Aug 31, 2014 - The mod will be available on Sid Meier's Civilization 5 game forums for free (by copy&paste) until finally we release the new mod to the general public. Aug 31, 2014 - I will now start to write a full patch description for the mod, as the community is already asking about the required game files. You must be logged in to post a comment.
