The current production versions are Python 2.6.4 and Python 3.1.1.

Start with one of these versions for learning Python or if you want the most stability; they're both considered stable production releases.

If you don't know which version to use, start with Python 2.6.4; more existing third party software is compatible with Python 2 than Python 3 right now.

For the MD5 checksums and OpenPGP signatures, look at the detailed Python 2.6.4 page:

- Python 2.6.4 Windows installer (Windows binary -- does not include source)
- Python 2.6.4 Windows AMD64 installer (Windows AMD64 binary -- does not include source)
- Python 2.6.4 Mac Installer Disk Image
- Python 2.6.4 compressed source tarball (for Linux, Unix or OS X)
- Python 2.6.4 bziped source tarball (for Linux, Unix or OS X, more compressed)

Also look at the detailed Python 3.1.1 page:

- Python 3.1.1 Windows x86 MSI Installer (Windows binary -- does not include source)
- Python 3.1.1 Windows AMD64 MSI Installer (Windows AMD64 binary -- does not include source)
- Python 3.1.1 compressed source tarball (for Linux, Unix or OS X)
- Python 3.1.1 bziped source tarball (for Linux, Unix or OS X, more compressed)

A comprehensive list of all released versions is available if you need source code for an older version of Python.

Other parties have re-packaged Python. These re-packagings often include more libraries or are specialized for a particular application:
